Notice of Bankruptcy Case Filing

A bankruptcy case concerning the debtor(s) listed below was filed under Chapter 7 of the United States Bankruptcy Code, entered on 06/12/2026 at 2:31 PM and filed on 06/12/2026.

Steven Bradley Mell
PO Box 835

In most instances, the filing of the bankruptcy case automatically stays certain collection and other actions against the debtor and the debtor's property. Under certain circumstances, the stay may be limited to 30 days or not exist at all, although the debtor can request the court to extend or impose a stay. If you attempt to collect a debt or take other action in violation of the Bankruptcy Code, you may be penalized. Consult a lawyer to determine your rights in this case.

If you would like to view the bankruptcy petition and other documents filed by the debtor, they are available at our Internet home page <http://ecf.njb.uscourts.gov> or at the Clerk's Office, 402 East State Street, Trenton, NJ 08608.

You may be a creditor of the debtor. If so, you will receive an additional notice from the court setting forth important deadlines.

Official Form 106CSchedule C: The Property You Claim as Exempt*4/25

Be as complete and accurate as possible. If two married people are filing together, both are equally responsible for supplying correct information. Using the property you listed on Schedule A/B: Property (Official Form 106A/B) as your source, list the property that you claim as exempt. If more space is needed, fill out and attach to this page as many copies of Part 2: Additional Page as necessary. On the top of any additional pages, write your name and case number (if known).

For each item of property you claim as exempt, you must specify the amount of the exemption you claim. One way of doing so is to state a specific dollar amount as exempt. Alternatively, you may claim the full fair market value of the property being exempted up to the amount of any applicable statutory limit. Some exemptions—such as those for health aids, rights to receive certain benefits, and tax-exempt retirement funds—may be unlimited in dollar amount. However, if you claim an exemption of 100% of fair market value under a law that limits the exemption to a particular dollar amount and the value of the property is determined to exceed that amount, your exemption would be limited to the applicable statutory amount.

Part 1: Identify the Property You Claim as Exempt

1. Which set of exemptions are you claiming? Check one only, even if your spouse is filing with you.

☐ You are claiming state and federal nonbankruptcy exemptions. 11 U.S.C. § 522(b)(3)

Notice Required by 11 U.S.C. § 342(b) for Individuals Filing for Bankruptcy (Form 2010)

This notice is for you if:

You are an individual filing for bankruptcy,
and

Your debts are primarily consumer debts.
Consumer debts are defined in 11 U.S.C.
§ 101(8) as "incurred by an individual primarily for a personal, family, or household purpose."

The types of bankruptcy that are available to individuals

Individuals who meet the qualifications may file under one of four different chapters of Bankruptcy Code:

Chapter 7 - Liquidation

Chapter 11 - Reorganization

Chapter 12 - Voluntary repayment plan for family farmers or fishermen

Chapter 13 - Voluntary repayment plan for individuals with regular income

You should have an attorney review your decision to file for bankruptcy and the choice of chapter.

Chapter 7: Liquidation

$245 filing fee

$78 administrative fee

+ $15 trustee surcharge

$338 total fee

Chapter 7 is for individuals who have financial difficulty preventing them from paying their debts and who are willing to allow their non-exempt property to be used to pay their creditors. The primary purpose of filing under chapter 7 is to have your debts discharged. The bankruptcy discharge relieves you after bankruptcy from having to pay many of your pre-bankruptcy debts. Exceptions exist for particular debts, and liens on property may still be enforced after discharge. For example, a creditor may have the right to foreclose a home mortgage or repossess an automobile.

However, if the court finds that you have committed certain kinds of improper conduct described in the Bankruptcy Code, the court may deny your discharge.

You should know that even if you file chapter 7 and you receive a discharge, some debts are not discharged under the law. Therefore, you may still be responsible to pay:

most taxes;

most student loans;

domestic support and property settlement obligations;

most fines, penalties, forfeitures, and criminal restitution obligations; and certain debts that are not listed in your bankruptcy papers.

You may also be required to pay debts arising from:

fraud or theft;

fraud or defalcation while acting in breach of fiduciary capacity;

intentional injuries that you inflicted; and death or personal injury caused by operating a motor vehicle, vessel, or aircraft while intoxicated from alcohol or drugs.

If your debts are primarily consumer debts, the court can dismiss your chapter 7 case if it finds that you have enough income to repay creditors a certain amount. You must file Chapter 7 Statement of Your Current Monthly Income (Official Form 122A-1) if you are an individual filing for bankruptcy under chapter 7. This form will determine your current monthly income and compare whether your income is more than the median income that applies in your state.

If your income is not above the median for your state, you will not have to complete the other chapter 7 form, the Chapter 7 Means Test Calculation (Official Form 122A-2).

If your income is above the median for your state, you must file a second form—the Chapter 7 Means Test Calculation (Official Form 122A-2). The calculations on the form—sometimes called the Means Test—deduct from your income living expenses and payments on certain debts to determine any amount available to pay unsecured creditors. If your income is more than the median income for your state of residence and family size, depending on the results of the Means Test, the U.S. trustee, bankruptcy administrator, or creditors can file a motion to dismiss your case under § 707(b) of the Bankruptcy Code. If a motion is filed, the court will decide if your case should be dismissed. To avoid dismissal, you may choose to proceed under another chapter of the Bankruptcy Code.

If you are an individual filing for chapter 7 bankruptcy, the trustee may sell your property to pay your debts, subject to your right to exempt the property or a portion of the proceeds from the sale of the property. The property, and the proceeds from property that your bankruptcy trustee sells or liquidates that you are entitled to, is called exempt property. Exemptions may enable you to keep your home, a car, clothing, and household items or to receive some of the proceeds if the property is sold.

Exemptions are not automatic. To exempt property, you must list it on Schedule C: The Property You Claim as Exempt (Official Form 106C). If you do not list the property, the trustee may sell it and pay all of the proceeds to your creditors.

Chapter 11: Reorganization

	$1,167	filing fee
+	$571	administrative fee
	$1,738	total fee

Chapter 11 is often used for reorganizing a business, but is also available to individuals. The provisions of chapter 11 are too complicated to summarize briefly.

Read These Important Warnings

Because bankruptcy can have serious long-term financial and legal consequences, including loss of your property, you should hire an attorney and carefully consider all of your options before you file. Only an attorney can give you legal advice about what can happen as a result of filing for bankruptcy and what your options are. If you do file for bankruptcy, an attorney can help you fill out the forms properly and protect you, your family, your home, and your possessions.

Although the law allows you to represent yourself in bankruptcy court, you should understand that many people find it difficult to represent themselves successfully. The rules are technical, and a mistake or inaction may harm you. If you file without an attorney, you are still responsible for knowing and following all of the legal requirements.

You should not file for bankruptcy if you are not eligible to file or if you do not intend to file the necessary documents.

Bankruptcy fraud is a serious crime; you could be fined and imprisoned if you commit fraud in your bankruptcy case. Making a false statement, concealing property, or obtaining money or property by fraud in connection with a bankruptcy case can result in fines up to $250,000, or imprisonment for up to 20 years, or both. 18 U.S.C. §§ 152, 1341, 1519, and 3571.

Chapter 12: Repayment plan for family farmers or fishermen

	$200	filing fee
+	$78	administrative fee
	$278	total fee

Similar to chapter 13, chapter 12 permits family farmers and fishermen to repay their debts over a period of time using future earnings and to discharge some debts that are not paid.

Chapter 13: Repayment plan for individuals with regular income

	$235	filing fee
+	$78	administrative fee
	$313	total fee

Chapter 13 is for individuals who have regular income and would like to pay all or part of their debts in installments over a period of time and to discharge some debts that are not paid. You are eligible for chapter 13 only if your debts are not more than certain dollar amounts set forth in 11 U.S.C. § 109.

Under chapter 13, you must file with the court a plan to repay your creditors all or part of the money that you owe them, usually using your future earnings. If the court approves your plan, the court will allow you to repay your debts, as adjusted by the plan, within 3 years or 5 years, depending on your income and other factors.

After you make all the payments under your plan, many of your debts are discharged. The debts that are not discharged and that you may still be responsible to pay include:

domestic support obligations,

most student loans,

certain taxes,

debts for fraud or theft,

debts for fraud or defalcation while acting in a fiduciary capacity,

most criminal fines and restitution obligations,

certain debts that are not listed in your bankruptcy papers,

certain debts for acts that caused death or personal injury, and certain long-term secured debts.

Warning: File Your Forms on Time

Section 521(a)(1) of the Bankruptcy Code requires that you promptly file detailed information about your creditors, assets, liabilities, income, expenses and general financial condition. The court may dismiss your bankruptcy case if you do not file this information within the deadlines set by the Bankruptcy Code, the Bankruptcy Rules, and the local rules of the court.

For more information about the documents and their deadlines, go to:
<http://www.uscourts.gov/forms/bankruptcy-forms>

Bankruptcy crimes have serious consequences

If you knowingly and fraudulently conceal assets or make a false oath or statement under penalty of perjury—either orally or in writing—in connection with a bankruptcy case, you may be fined, imprisoned, or both.

All information you supply in connection with a bankruptcy case is subject to examination by the Attorney General acting through the Office of the U.S. Trustee, the Office of the U.S. Attorney, and other offices and employees of the U.S. Department of Justice.

Make sure the court has your mailing address

The bankruptcy court sends notices to the mailing address you list on Voluntary Petition for Individuals Filing for Bankruptcy (Official Form 101). To ensure that you receive information about your case, Bankruptcy Rule 4002 requires that you notify the court of any changes in your address.

A married couple may file a bankruptcy case together—called a joint case. If you file a joint case and each spouse lists the same mailing address on the bankruptcy petition, the bankruptcy court generally will mail you and your spouse one copy of each notice, unless you file a statement with the court asking that each spouse receive separate copies.

Understand which services you could receive from credit counseling agencies

The law generally requires that you receive a credit counseling briefing from an approved credit counseling agency. 11 U.S.C. § 109(h). If you are filing a joint case, both spouses must receive the briefing. With limited exceptions, you must receive it within the 180 days before you file your bankruptcy petition. This briefing is usually conducted by telephone or on the Internet.

In addition, after filing a bankruptcy case, you generally must complete a financial management instructional course before you can receive a discharge. If you are filing a joint case, both spouses must complete the course.

You can obtain the list of agencies approved to provide both the briefing and the instructional course from:
<http://www.uscourts.gov/services-forms/bankruptcy/credit-counseling-and-debtor-education-courses>.

In Alabama and North Carolina, go to:
<http://www.uscourts.gov/services-forms/bankruptcy/credit-counseling-and-debtor-education-courses>.

If you do not have access to a computer, the clerk of the bankruptcy court may be able to help you obtain the list.

 MOTION

THE COURT : Decision	32

1 (Proceeding in session at 1:37:40 p.m.)
2 THE COURT: All right. Good afternoon. This
3 is B.B. v. Mell, et al., which is ESX-L-7200-19. It's 4 May 15th of 2026. This is Judge Robert H. Gardner,
5 Superior Court, Law Division, Essex County Civil 6 Division.
7 Counsel, enter appearances for the record,
8 please. Plaintiff?
9 MR. PARAGANO: Good afternoon, Your Honor.
10 Michael Paragano, Nagel Rice, on behalf of 11 the plaintiff, B.B.
12 THE COURT: Good afternoon.
13 MS. GUIDA: Good afternoon, Your Honor.
14 Nataliana Guida, with my partner, Bob Evers, 15 Marshall Dennehey, for Third-Party Defendants D.D. and 16 E.E.
17 THE COURT: All right. Richard, do you want
18 to enter appearance, or --
19 MR. GREIFINGER: I represent an interested
20 non-party. I would ask, because I can't hear so well,
21 if I could --
22 THE COURT: Sure.
23 MR. GREIFINGER: Thank you.
24 THE COURT: Mr. Mell?
25 MR. MELL: Yes.

1 S T E V E N B R A D L E Y M E L L, DEFENDANT, 2 SWORN.
3 THE COURT: You're Bradley Mell?
4 MR. MELL: I am. Yes, sir.
5 THE COURT: Thank you, sir. Have a seat.
6 Okay. Mr. Paragano, just to keep things
7 straight here, as you know, this has been a paper chase
8 and an avalanche of very -- I mean, this entire far 9 side -- the record will reflect the entire left side of 10 the bench here is covered in various briefs and 11 submissions and certifications, and I appreciate
12 counsels' efforts in that regard.
13 I mean, now since we adjourned this,
14 obviously, from last month, I've now prepped this whole
15 thing twice. What's left in this case? I know, 16 obviously, there's issues between Mr. Mell and the 17 third-party defendants. There's cross-motions there.
18 I know a number of people have settled out, including,
19 I believe, the -- Ms. Mell's --
20 MR. PARAGANO: Yeah, Judge --
21 THE COURT: -- trusts.
22 MR. PARAGANO: -- we've settled with 23 everyone, from the plaintiff's perspective, except for 24 Mr. Mell.
25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. PARAGANO: That's the only remaining
2 defendant left.
3 THE COURT: Okay. So Gulfstream's out.
4 MR. PARAGANO: Out.
5 THE COURT: I saw that. Mountain --
6 MR. PARAGANO: The trusts are out.
7 THE COURT: Mountainside's out?
8 MR. PARAGANO: Mountainside is out --
9 THE COURT: Okay.
10 MR. PARAGANO: -- and Ms. Ruggles Mell is 11 also out. So literally every defendant is out. The 12 summary judgements that pertain to us regarding any 13 defendants are completely --
14 THE COURT: Withdrawn.
15 MR. PARAGANO: -- withdrawn.
16 THE COURT: I --
17 MR. PARAGANO: So the real -- the only 18 motions on today are between third-party defendants and 19 Mr. Mell.
20 THE COURT: Okay. All right.
21 MR. PARAGANO: That's it.
22 THE COURT: And there's cross-motions for 23 summary judgement in that regard?
24 MR. PARAGANO: Correct.
25 THE COURT: Thank you. As I said, I was

1 prepping all this other stuff, and I couldn't quite
2 figure it out, because I was looking at certain things
3 on eCourts, certain stips were coming in, certain 4 letters were coming in, and I wanted to make sure we 5 were all -- we were all really on the same page.
6 All right. So now bear with me two seconds
7 here as I -- that's withdrawn. That's withdrawn. All
8 right. I'll get you there yet, folks. Bear with me.
9 All right.
10 (Pause)
11 THE COURT: All right. There -- as I said, 12 the only remaining aspects would then be then the 13 cross-motions between Defendant/Third-Party Plaintiff
14 Mell and the third-party defendants D.D. and E.E.
15 Just so the record reflects, the briefing was 16 substantial in this matter. The Court has had an 17 opportunity to review all of it. That being the case, 18 whosoever the preference on -- wishes to go first is 19 fine by me.
20 MR. MELL: I'm happy to go first.
21 THE COURT: Mr. Mell, you want to go first?
22 That's fine. Sure.
23 MR. MELL: Is it okay if I sit? I just have 24 sciatica, so standing --
25 THE COURT: Sure.

1 MR. MELL: Thank you.

2 THE COURT: No problem. And to explain, I've
3 read all the papers. As you know, I've been handling
4 this case since 2019.

5 MR. MELL: Absolutely.

6 THE COURT: The Court is intimately familiar
7 with the fact pattern.

8 MR. MELL: So I just -- I wanted to highlight
9 a couple of things.

10 THE COURT: Sure.

11 MR. MELL: But --

12 THE COURT: Absolutely.

13 MR. MELL: Thank you, Your Honor.

14 So before the Court today are two summary
15 judgement motions. As Your Honor is aware, you have 16 granted five separate motions to implead the parents
17 D.D. and E.E. back in late 2023. My liability is not 18 before the Court, the parents' is. I plead guilty. I
19 served my sentence.

20 And, Your Honor, I also want to briefly
21 advise the Court of a recent development in the related
22 New Jersey criminal matter arising from the same
23 subject matter as they used in the case. The Honorable 24 Christopher Gardner -- or Garrenger, of Hunterdon
25 County, has granted an evidentiary hearing to explore

1 whether my guilty plea, the plea agreement, and the 2 related proceedings were ineffective and 3 unconstitutional due to ineffective assistance of 4 counsel.

5 THE COURT: You got to talk a little bit
6 louder, sir.

7 MR. MELL: Okay.

8 THE COURT: Let me explain. As I tell all
9 the witnesses and anyone who testifies, it's a
10 beautiful room with terrible acoustics.

11 MR. MELL: Okay.

12 THE COURT: You got to keep your voice up.

13 MR. MELL: Yep.

14 THE COURT: It may be a little bit unnatural
15 in the sense you may feel like you're shouting. You're 16 not. We just got to make sure that Madam Clerk and the 17 microphone --

18 MR. MELL: Got it.

19 THE COURT: -- picks you up so that it
20 records, okay?

21 MR. MELL: Okay. And I have a copy of that 22 court order for the Court, if you want to see it.

23 What brings us here today is a separate legal 24 action, whether the parents who, by their own
25 admission, learned in February 2016 of what they

1 themselves characterize as an inappropriate situation
2 between their daughter and myself and whom, for the 3 next 16 months, accepted private flights, club
4 memberships, and significant sums of money, whether 5 those parents bear any legal responsibility for what 6 happened to their younger daughter. This is the only
7 question before the Court today.

8 Statute 2A:61B of the CSAA asks whether the 9 parents knowingly permitted and acquiesced. The 10 relevant facts remain undisputed. I intend to show 11 how.

12 Statute -- Your Honor, the New Jersey Sexual 13 -- Child Sexual Abuse Act states that a parent who 14 knowingly permits and acquiesces the sexual abuse of 15 the child is liable. If they committed -- even if they 16 didn't commit abuse themselves, the two words that 17 entirely hold weight in this argument are knowingly and 18 acquiesced.

19 I'd like to walk the Court through the 20 undisputed records. On President's Day 2016, both 21 parents became aware of what they themselves described 22 as an inappropriate relationship involving their 23 daughter, C.C., and myself. This is not in dispute.
24 It is stated in the parents' summary judgement motion
25 dated January 15, page 3 line item 5.

1 They did not read about it. They did not
2 hear a rumor. The mother sat across from me in a
3 private room at the Essex Hunt Club and had direct --
4 and heard directly from me about the relationship.
5 This is the starting point. Not December 4th when the 6 school was called, not when police got involved in late
7 December 2017 but, in fact, February 2016. That's when 8 the clock started.

9 From that moment forward, every decision the 10 parents made was with knowledge in hand. They 11 acknowledged that the situation involving their teenage
12 daughter had occurred, and they themselves
13 characterized it as inappropriate. That is not 14 suspicious. That is not assumption. That is direct 15 uncontested knowledge.

16 The Court needs to take no other words. It
17 is the defendant's own -- it's in defendant's own 18 filing, paragraph 5 of the defendant's statement of 19 material facts.

20 Acquiesces. Your Honor, what did the parents
21 do with the knowledge? They did not contact police,
22 they did not serve any -- they did not sever any 23 contact with me, and they did not take any protective 24 actions whatsoever.

25 Instead, over the next 16 months, they

1 accepted the private plane for an entire -- for their 2 entire family to Maine for college move-in, again to 3 Maine for parents' weekend, flown out of New York City
4 via helicopter piloted by myself after a shopping
5 spree, also paid by myself. This is all in the record,
6 and it's all undisputed.

7 They accepted $25,000 into the mother's Chase
8 account, an account opened just four weeks before the 9 deposit arrived. They spent every penny of the 25,000,
10 and then fabricated a false record by immediately
11 depositing 25,000 on December 1st, right after Attorney
12 Patrick Whalen filed a motion to compel these -- 13 Chase's statements. See Mell summary judgement motion,
14 Exhibit 2.

15 October 21, 2019, the Chase account became 16 insolvent due to the Lowest Intermediate Balance Rule, 17 line 390.

18 On December 1, 2022, D.D. transferred 25,000
19 into this account, line number 802.

20 And on May 1, 2023, D.D. transferred out
21 25,000 to their attorney, Richard Greifinger, line 862.

22 They accepted brokerage accounts funded with 23 $25,000 each, they accepted concert tickets, they 24 accepted real estate commissions, they accepted
25 sponsorships to an exclusive club of which I was on the

1 board and, critically, with full knowledge of what they
2 themselves characterize as an inappropriate situation
3 with their daughter, they permitted me to take their 4 daughter, B.B., alone to the airport to fund and 5 facilitate private flying lessons. Her parents knew it
6 and approved. This is on the record.

7 Your Honor, the statute does not require
8 these parents wanting anything improper to occur. It
9 requires that they knowingly permitted and acquiesced
10 in the conditions that allowed it. The undisputed 11 record shows exactly that.

12 If there is any remaining doubt about how the 13 mother understood the nature of the relationship, the 14 Court need look no further than her own words.

15 On November 19, 2017, weeks before any police
16 involvement, she texted her daughter and wrote,

17 "I also think he's ready to be done
18 with us. Not get rid of B.B., but 19 done with us, a family unit."

20 Your Honor, the text did not come from a 21 mother who was deceived. It came from a mother who 22 understood exactly what was at stake, and it was not 23 her daughter's safety.

24 Parental immunity. Your Honor, I want to 25 address parental immunity directly. First, the

1 legislature already resolved this question when the 2 legislature drafted the Sexual -- Child Sexual Abuse
3 Act and included the word parent explicitly. It made a
4 deliberate -- made a deliberate choice to create
5 parental liability in exactly this circumstance.
6 Applying immunity here would nullify any legislative 7 choice entirely.

8 This Court does not read the statute to 9 produce certain results, as the statute holds the 10 parents liable and cannot simultaneously immunize them
11 from that liability.

12 Second, even under the Murray test, immunity 13 does not apply. The test requires that the conduct be 14 customary parental supervision pertaining to someone -- 15 permitting someone they had direct concerns about to 16 take their younger daughter alone to the airport is not 17 customary supervision. Accepting $25,000 while 18 maintaining and deepening the social relationship with 19 myself is not customary supervision.

20 This is not a failure to watch closely.
21 This is an affirmative choice repeated over 16 months
22 to maintain the benefits from the relationship they had 23 every reason to scrutinize.

24 Third, even if the Court found the conduct
25 that qualifies as supervision, it meets the willful and

1 wanton standard under Foldi. The parents, who has 2 direct knowledge, who attends a private meeting and 3 then permits 16 months of deepening access while 4 attempting significant financial benefits is not
5 negligence. This is willful disregard of a known risk
6 to their child -- children.

7 Your Honor, the relevant facts are not in 8 dispute. The statute is clear. These parents had 9 direct knowledge of the situation they characterized as 10 inappropriate. For 16 months, they acquiesced and they 11 benefitted.

12 Summary judgement should be entered into my 13 favor on the CSAA claim. Parental immunity does not 14 exist. The contribution and indemnification claim
15 should proceed to trial.

16 Thank you, Your Honor. I'm happy to answer
17 any questions.

18 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Mell.
19 Counsel for the --

20 MS. GUIDA: Thank you.

21 THE COURT: -- third-party defendants, when 22 you're ready.

23 MS. GUIDA: Thank you, Your Honor.

24 I agree with Mr. Mell, the statue is clear,
25 and that's where we part in any agreement. The CSAA

1 defines sexual abuse as an act of sexual contact or 2 sexual penetration between a child under the age of 18
3 years and an adult. A parent, foster parent, guardian,
4 or other person standing in loco parentis within the 5 household who knowingly permits or acquiesces in sexual 6 abuse by any other person also commits sexual abuse.
7 That use of an adverb, knowingly permits or acquiesces
8 in the sexual abuse, is clear.

9 What happened in February 2016 had absolutely
10 nothing to do with the plaintiff in this case. It
11 dealt with the relationship with her older sister --
12 the inappropriate relationship that Mell had with her
13 older sister. And we've yet to see, despite I think it
14 was over 2100 days of discovery in this case, any shred
15 of evidence that supports the contention that the 16 parents knew of Mr. Mells abuse of their middle 17 daughter, plaintiff in this case.

18 It cannot be disputed that there's no actual 19 knowledge of Mr. Mell's abuse of plaintiff here. Not a 20 single thing, despite giving Mr. Mell every single 21 benefit of the doubt, has been produced.

22 What we have here, effectively, is a
23 different situation than the time when the third-party
24 -- when the motions for summary judgement dismissing 25 the third-party complaints against my client were

1 filed. All other third-party plaintiffs have settled
2 out of the case, and their third-party complaints have 3 been withdrawn.

4 What's before the Court today is what's left
5 between Mr. Mell and the parents, who asked the Court
6 to find that he is entitled to monetary benefit because 7 his victim's parents failed to stop him from committing 8 the abuse. That is why we are here today, and none of 9 us would be in this room today if it were not for 10 Mr. Mell.

11 The purpose of the CSAA is to provide victims
12 of child sex abuse -- the legislative intent -- the 13 legislative purpose, is to provide victims of sexual 14 abuse with the opportunity to address the difficulties
15 that they are faced with bringing claims against their 16 abusers. There were certain time limitations
17 associated, the statute of limitations being two years.
18 In the case of child sexual abuse, obviously, it
19 presents various problems with that. And the purpose
20 has to do with compensating the victims, not the 21 abuser.

22 Concerning parental immunity, I can go
23 through -- and I'm not going to belabor the points in 24 the papers -- I can go through it if Your Honor wishes.

25 THE COURT: I've read it all. Counsel, you

1 can make whatever record --

2 MS. GUIDA: I don't feel I need to.

3 THE COURT: -- you want to make, counsel.

4 MS. GUIDA: And I, quite frankly, feel that I
5 don't need to, because what I just heard is just a
6 recitation of Mr. Mell's third-party complaint against 7 my clients. And on the papers, in all of the evidence
8 before Your Honor, there is nothing substantiating any 9 CSAA claims against my clients, and there is nothing
10 which would support stripping them of their right to 11 parental immunity in this case.

12 Because if you look at Foldi -- and Foldi is 13 where we first hear in the case law of the beginning of 14 the aggregation of parental immunity and, as years have 15 gone on, the courts have narrowed that, and narrowed
16 that, and narrowed that down. And in Foldi, the Court
17 placed great emphasis on the --

18 THE COURT: Parental authority and the 19 customary child care. The Court's familiar with Foldi.

20 MS. GUIDA: Beyond that, Your Honor, the 21 importance and protection of the household itself,
22 recognizing that not one child is the same, not one
23 parenting philosophy is the same, and one's 24 experiences, cultural -- life happens. Whatever
25 choices they make, the Court does not want to disturb

1 the parental unit and the decisions made in child
2 rearing.

3 So what I haven't heard from Mr. Mell is 4 anything about proximate cause.

5 THE COURT: Well, counsel, let me stop you.

6 MS. GUIDA: Um-hum.

7 THE COURT: Mr. Mell had some issues with the 8 -- and the third-party plaintiff had issues with regard
9 to C.C., who is the older sister.

10 MS. GUIDA: Correct.

11 THE COURT: And, in fact, the parents knew
12 about that. In fact, I think it's pretty undisputed, 13 the fact that there was some ongoing conversations with 14 regard to -- in the facts with regard to the -- that 15 particular relationship that went on was ultimately 16 revealed and ultimately stopped, and the argument being 17 that obviously that the third-party defendants were 18 somehow on notice of Mr. Mell's proclivities, if you 19 will.

20 Now I understand that that's not necessarily 21 what the CSAA was originally enacted for, but we have 22 to live with the language of the act, whether the 23 legislature -- if there's -- as I have been an intern
24 of the legislature in Connecticut, legislation and --
25 sometimes ends in -- is enacted that has unforeseen

1 consequences -- unforeseen permutations and 2 consequences.

3 This is somewhat of an interesting approach
4 that Mr. Mell is taking in this particular case, but 5 it's not necessarily one that the law seems to not 6 allow for.

7 MS. GUIDA: Well, in my reading, Your Honor,
8 of the CSAA --

9 THE COURT: Well, counsel, here's the problem
10 here, is that, if you will -- I've read all the 11 papers --

12 MS. GUIDA: Um-hum.

13 THE COURT: -- multiple times. The issue
14 here is whether, in fact, the parents acquiesced with 15 regard to what ended up happening or didn't happen in 16 this particular case, and the issue whether, in fact,
17 that acquiescence rises to the level of a willful,
18 wanton act or failure to act that would abrogate
19 parental immunity. That's what the case is about.

20 The problem with that is as soon as we get 21 into what is reasonable and what is willful or wanton,
22 it's a jury trial.

23 MS. GUIDA: Well, Your Honor --

24 THE COURT: Yes, it is, respectfully.

25 MS. GUIDA: I --

1 THE COURT: There's so much --

2 MS. GUIDA: I just want to back up --

3 THE COURT: There is so much --

4 MS. GUIDA: Okay.

5 THE COURT: There is so much, if you will,
6 circumstantial evidence. Obviously, you know, with 7 regard to having sat in criminal, as I did for 8 six-and-a-half years, many a cases have been proven by 9 circumstantial evidence rather than direct evidence.
10 This is a case -- they both are acceptable as means of 11 proof.

12 In this particular case, there's a ton of 13 circumstantial evidence in this case on both sides. So 14 where are we going? I'll hear you.

15 MS. GUIDA: There is nothing in this -- in 16 the plain language of the statute that talks about 17 foreseeability. We don't get to willful -- we don't 18 get to parental immunity if there is CSAA, because we 19 have knowledge there.

20 We're -- they're two separate animals.
21 There's CSAA, and there's parental immunity. They're 22 two separate claims. One's statutory, the CSAA.

23 THE COURT: Um-hum.

24 MS. GUIDA: The other is negligence. And 25 parental immunity, obviously, is the bar to negligence.

1 But looking -- you have to look at them separately.

2 Looking at the CSAA separately, how can you
3 knowingly permit or acquiesce in that which you are not 4 aware is occurring? And if you want -- if you're 5 towing the line, getting into the negligence and 6 parental immunity area --

7 THE COURT: Um-hum.

8 MS. GUIDA: -- and Mr. Mell is going to make 9 the argument that, well, you should have known because 10 of what I was doing in 2016 with your older daughter,
11 you can't even judge -- you cannot judge past judgement
12 on the parents' actions when they have not acted
13 knowingly and consciously that a result may occur,
14 because their actions following learning of the 15 inappropriate relationship with their older daughter
16 were not premised -- were premised upon manipulation,
17 were premised upon deceit, were premised upon the very 18 things that Mr. Mell used to get access to their middle 19 daughter.

20 It is not a standard of perfection. It is 21 not a standard of even mere negligence. We're moving
22 into parental immunity now. It's willful and wanton.

23 And you don't even get to that -- you cannot 24 -- you can't even get there because they are not acting 25 knowingly. They do not -- they are not aware of the

1 state of facts that can allow them to even make a
2 willful or wanton decision because they are being
3 manipulated by the perpetrator himself.

4 The parents -- everybody in that family is a
5 victim in different respects, and the parents fell
6 victim to Mr. Mell's manipulation. They did. And 7 effectively, by allowing this to continue, you are --
8 the Court is rewarding the perpetrator for his success
9 in deceiving the parents.

10 Could they have done things differently? Did
11 they make some mistakes? That is exactly what Foldi
12 talks about.

13 THE COURT: Um-hum.

14 MS. GUIDA: In retrospect, that is exactly
15 what Foldi talks about. That is the purpose of 16 parental immunity, not to question that, because 17 parents don't have a crystal ball, because parents
18 don't have a handbook, because there is no handbook
19 that comes with learning your 16 -- your 17-year-old
20 daughter is an inappropriate -- in an inappropriate
21 relationship with her best friend's father. There's no
22 handbook.

23 My clients handled that the best way they 24 felt that they could. They took her to a therapist.
25 The therapist -- faced with the threat of driving her

1 right into his arms, the mother initiated supervision
2 in the form of tracking her daughter. But afraid of 3 losing her, she -- what do you do?

4 This was the decision -- this was the 5 circumstance. This was the manipulation. And you --
6 they cannot be judged at all, let alone willful or 7 wanton, when that -- actions that they took, the 8 claimed lack of supervision, which is not lack of 9 supervision -- there is supervision, Mr. Mell is 10 thwarting it. Mr. Mell is the one who is coordinating 11 hiding the phone at the friend's. There's a scheme
12 here.

13 And I'll take it -- and to loop it back
14 around to the CSAA, it comes back to that November 19, 15 2017 text message and everything that happens then and 16 there. There is one person in this room who has 17 firsthand knowledge of this case, who has not failed to 18 remind us in almost every single pleading. And at his 19 -- and at Mr. Mell's deposition, when he was asked when 20 it was that the parents first had actual knowledge of 21 his abuse of plaintiff in this case, he pointed to 22 October 2017.

23 And that is the standard under the CSAA.
24 Again, it's not foreseeability. It's not knowledge of 25 a risk. It's not there. If a legislature wanted that

1 to be the standard, it would put it in there, but it
2 didn't.

3 THE COURT: Um-hum.

4 MS. GUIDA: And it's not for a reason. And,
5 look, I don't want to waste time with the papers,
6 because it is laid out I think pretty clearly in my 7 opposition and in my reply brief.

8 But how could my client have known about 9 Mr. Mell's abuse of plaintiff in this case on November
10 19, 2017 or any time before that when you have Mr. Mell
11 himself texting her explaining, I'm sorry, I thought it
12 was okay that I was just talking to her, but I assure 13 you, unlike your older daughter, this was nothing but a 14 friendship, we were just talking.

15 There's no knowledge. There's no
16 acquiescence. There's certainly no permission. She is 17 putting up a wall. She's getting nervous now. She is 18 trying to supervise more and more.

19 There is no -- Your Honor, there is no
20 evidence supporting what the case -- what the statute
21 -- the plain language of the statute requires.

22 THE COURT: Okay.

23 MS. GUIDA: And the last thing I want to 24 address is the parental immunity cases and the line of 25 cases that have been published that do abrogate -- and

1 even those that don't -- didn't contemplate the 2 situation before this Court. They dealt with dog
3 bites. They dealt with gasoline.

4 THE COURT: Um-hum.

5 MS. GUIDA: They dealt with crossing a
6 street. They dealt with inanimate objects who aren't
7 capable of speaking, who aren't capable of lulling prey
8 into an illusion of safety, Your Honor, and that's what 9 we have here.

10 We've heard a lot -- and, again, all I've 11 heard from Mr. Mell today is simply a recitation of his 12 third-party complaint, but what I -- and I will rely on 13 my papers in terms of all of those finer factual
14 points.

15 But if you want to talk about the $25,000, I
16 do think it -- and the deposits, I do think it
17 certainly is worth mentioning that it was Mr. Mell who 18 deposited the money. He is asking the Court to believe 19 that my client somehow knew about that, asked for it.

20 He just testified -- admitted that she never 21 asked for it. She never directly asked for it. She 22 mentioned that, according to him -- which my client
23 denies -- that they were tight on tuition.

24 THE COURT: Um-hum.

25 MS. GUIDA: They deny that. The two -- the

1 discovery that has been served in this case that is 2 before Your Honor unequivocally demonstrates that the 3 tuition was never paid by Mr. Mell. It was paid by the 4 parents.

5 The money that he deposited -- he went to the 6 bank. He filled out the deposit slip. He cashed the 7 check. She didn't know about it until way down the 8 road. She had no idea, and she never touched that 9 money in the critical time period that Mr. Mell has 10 defined, that prior counsel who is no longer in this 11 case has defined, that everybody has defined.

12 Because what happens after December 4, 2017,
13 has absolutely no bearing on whether or not -- on their 14 claims in this case, whether or not my clients turned 15 the other cheek and allowed the abuse to occur because 16 they were enjoying his benefits.

17 That is part of the manipulation, Judge.
18 That is part of it. He deposited that money on the day
19 he committed the crimes to which he plead guilty in 20 state court.

21 He knew exactly what he was doing. My 22 clients never touched it. That money is in escrow.
23 There's a total of 75 in escrow. He -- Mr. Mell has 24 conceded that my clients never touched the money that 25 was in -- that was in the investment accounts. Never

1 touched it.

2 Same scenario. They didn't ask for that
3 money. That money got put in there. He has abandoned
4 his claims in this case.

5 At his deposition, he testified, I guess -- I
6 guess maybe not, maybe I didn't -- maybe I didn't pay
7 their tuition, because he didn't, Your Honor. There's 8 a lot of red herrings and a lot of snippets that are 9 thrown in his papers in this case, and when you read
10 things in context as a whole, it all comes together.

11 There's no getting rid of us. There's no,
12 maybe he's about to be done with us. If you read the 13 entire string of text message, you can see exactly what 14 she is saying, what my client is intending there.
15 She's trying to get her to stay away from him. Her 16 daughter is asking maybe if I can just be friends with 17 him in the future, or maybe can I just talk to him.
18 She said I think he's ready to be done with us. No.

19 Everything needs to be read in context, and 20 that is what the parental immunity doctrine requires, a 21 case-by-case basis for the trial judge to determine,
22 Your Honor. There's no question of fact for the jury,
23 Judge. Thank you.

24 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, counsel.
25 Mr. Mell, you want to say anything in

1 response?

2 MR. MELL: Just a couple quick things. Yes,
3 I actually, I would say, have firsthand knowledge --

4 THE COURT: You got to talk a little bit
5 louder.

6 MR. MELL: I'm sorry. Yes, I actually have 7 firsthand knowledge. You know, the parents -- I spoke 8 to the mom almost every day. I mean, we had 9 conversations.

10 I mean, for over the 16 months, when they 11 said that the parents didn't know, you know, B.B. slept
12 over at my house in July. I agreed to that. And the 13 parents, you know, text to me saying, you know, oh, I 14 know -- to her, I know where you were last night and 15 I'll talk to Mr. Mell. You know, so they knew in July,
16 you know, that, I mean, there was a potential issue
17 because she was, you know, flying, she stayed over.
18 The parents knew it.

19 The parents, they were so enamored, I would 20 say is the word, of the money, the lifestyle of -- you
21 know, when I was on the board at the Essex Hunt Club
22 and I got them in, you know, there happened to be two 23 cocktail parties and, at that time, I was having a 24 relationship with their older daughter, and they knew 25 it.

1 You know, and it has to be -- you know, you
2 scratch your head with, well, when you're dealing with 3 a board member cocktail party and there are 100 people
4 there, if they had said, oh, by the way, we know
5 Mr. Mell is having a relationship with our daughter --
6 they would never do that in a million years. They 7 redirected. They made the children lie.

8 When [REDACTED]'s -- when B.B.'s phone was found
9 by a friend -- and I think it was Leah who I told her 10 -- and they found a picture of B.B. and myself, the 11 mother was trying to reach out to the parents to say,
12 hey, there's a problem here, and they never did.

13 And then finally, that family said, well, if 14 they're not doing anything about it, we're going to 15 give the picture to the school, and they did. And I
16 accept this. It's wrong on so many levels.

17 The $25,000, you know, everyone calls it a 18 critical period but, you know, I've been in the 19 investment business forever, and anti-money laundering
20 and fraud is a big deal. When I went to Chase and 21 deposited the money, I was on the phone with the older
22 sister, and the mom on speakerphone, because Chase -- I
23 needed their permission to deposit, and I -- and she 24 gave me her DDA number. I didn't know what her account
25 number was. I can't look that up.

1 Yes, I signed the check. I deposited it. I
2 got a song and dance how the father lost money and, you
3 know, they couldn't pay tuition. And yes, I did offer,
4 and I deposited that money, but it was with their 5 knowledge.

6 And then when you look at, you know, my
7 filing, I did a complete analysis of that, you know,
8 and they -- it floats there, and you -- to say they 9 never touched it is kind of misnomer, because you can 10 deposit money, use it, and then put it back in and say,
11 oops, you know, hey, no harm, no foul. So --

12 THE COURT: I read your brief, sir.

13 MR. MELL: Okay. So -- and I don't blame
14 them, but there's just so much to this case that, you
15 know, the parents need to answer. And if they spent 16 three-and-a-half years going to the New Jersey Supreme 17 Court twice to stop questions, to stop all this, it's 18 because this is going to be a disaster. And, you know,
19 I owned my responsibility, and I will. Okay. That's a 20 fact. But no one else has in this case.

21 And for the -- you know, they knew about it,
22 Your Honor. I don't even know what to say.

23 THE COURT: All right. Thank you, Mr. Mell.

24 MR. PARAGANO: Judge, if I may just make an 25 application to the Court?

1 Mr. Mell just used the real name of my client
2 in open court. It's going to be on the record. If 3 there's any way we can move to strike that.

4 THE COURT: We'll move to have -- move to 5 strike the -- B.B.'s name that was used is granted.
6 All right. So ordered.

7 MR. PARAGANO: Thank you.

8 MR. MELL: Sorry about that.

9 THE COURT: That's all right.

10 MS. GUIDA: Your Honor, may I --

11 MR. EVERS: Just real quick.

12 MS. GUIDA: May I just very briefly?

13 THE COURT: You know there's --

14 MR. EVERS: One minute.

15 THE COURT: -- no such thing as re-redirect
16 in my courtroom, but I'll certainly hear you on 17 argument. Sure.

18 MR. EVERS: Thank you, Judge.

19 MS. GUIDA: Thank you, Judge.

20 THE COURT: Briefly. Briefly, yes.

21 MS. GUIDA: Very briefly, one or two 22 sentences?

23 THE COURT: Sure.

24 MS. GUIDA: Mr. Mell cannot just create
25 issues of fact in oral argument. This is the first

1 time that I'm hearing any of -- many of these things.

2 What's before Your Honor and what Your Honor
3 needs to consider is in the papers and what's supported
4 in the evidence before the Court. That's all. Thank 5 you.

6 THE COURT: All right. The matter comes
7 before the Court on cross-motions for summary
8 judgement.

9 The Court -- we all know there has to be 10 substantial issue of operative fact in order to deny a
11 motion for summary judgement, and reasonable inferences
12 have to occur against the movant, which in this 13 particular case is rather interesting since it's 14 cross-motions for summary judgement. Both motions are 15 denied.

16 The act -- 2A:61B-1(a)(1), the CSAA, the 17 wording is the parent who knowingly permits or 18 acquiesces in sexual abuse by any other person also 19 commits sexual abuse.

20 There's a substantial issue of operative fact
21 here as to whether the parents in fact acquiesced here.
22 And as I said, it may not be direct evidence, but there
23 certainly is circumstantial evidence to at least make 24 an argument of the reasonable inferences against the 25 movant that, in fact, they may have acquiesced in this

1 case, and that motion -- and, therefore, the motion is
2 denied.

3 Also, with regard to parental immunity,
4 there's four elements under the Murray test. Acts or 5 omissions by a parent that a factfinder could 6 reasonably find were the proximate cause of the 7 plaintiff's injury. Certainly, that's obvious in this 8 case.

9 Was conduct protected by parental immunity;
10 does it involve exercising parental authority of the 11 provision of customary child care. I don't think that 12 -- certainly, the argument here would be that what 13 happened here certainly does not fall within parental
14 authority -- or provision of customary child care.

15 C -- or three, does conduct constitute a lack 16 of parental supervision. I think that's kind of an 17 obvious answer.

18 And four, could a factfinder reasonably find 19 that the conduct was willful or wanton through 20 remaining conduct from the -- or from -- removing it
21 from parental immunity. As I said, whether in fact 22 this rises to the level of willful or wanton I think is 23 a jury question and, therefore, I think -- on both 24 sides, the motions are denied.

25 We'll have the matter -- which brings me to

1 my second aspect on my note to myself. I know counsel
2 -- I appreciate the fact that plaintiff's counsel is 3 here. The case was originally listed for next month, I
4 believe, on the 12th. I did get a letter from 5 Mr. Nagel --

6 MR. PARAGANO: It's --

7 THE COURT: -- with regards --

8 MR. PARAGANO: -- the 15th.

9 MR. MELL: The 15th.

10 THE COURT: Or the 15th, whatever that Monday
11 is.

12 MR. PARAGANO: Yeah.

13 THE COURT: I did get a letter from Mr. Nagel
14 indicating, for the plaintiff, that he had another case
15 in front of Judge Semper in federal court and he wanted
16 to move the date up.

17 Now yes, under the rule of -- under summary
18 judgement rules and the rules for scheduling trials,
19 after summary judgement, you have to allow at least 30
20 days unless the Court orders otherwise, and I'm not 21 necessarily inclined to do that unless everyone wants
22 to agree to that. If you want to agree to that -- 23 everyone wants to agree to that -- I don't know what 24 you have as far as preparations with regard to 25 witnesses and so forth.

1 I think this trial -- I did trial work for 23
2 years as a lawyer, and so I guess I'm understanding of 3 the stresses and strains involved. So the issue
4 becomes one of moving it earlier. I will certainly 5 talk to Judge Semper about the -- about his issues on 6 that front, although I appreciate the fact that federal 7 court always thinks they have priority over everybody
8 else. But this is also a 2019 case, and I'm sure his 9 case does not date from 2019. But I'll deal with Judge
10 Semper if I have to --

11 MR. PARAGANO: Okay.

12 THE COURT: -- by phone. What's your
13 thoughts, Mr. Paragano?

14 MR. PARAGANO: Yeah. Judge, we thought you
15 denied our request, which we saw on eCourts. That's 16 why we sort of now prepped that we're going to be ready
17 for June, I guess, 15th it is.

18 THE COURT: Well --

19 MR. PARAGANO: So --

20 THE COURT: -- I denied only -- well, there
21 wasn't consensus amongst the parties. Okay.

22 MR. PARAGANO: Right.

23 THE COURT: It's one thing if everybody
24 agrees. Look, we're here. I'm happy to accommodate 25 everybody who wants to show up whoever they want to

1 show up, okay, as long as I don't have another trial
2 going.

3 MR. PARAGANO: Right.

4 THE COURT: But I also understand, you know,
5 time, money, and effort to get these things prepared
6 and get them ready to go to trial. I have some 7 understanding of the client's money and your time.

8 So it depends on how you want to do with it.
9 If everyone wants to agree to a date sooner than that.
10 The week before, I'm not here on the Monday because I
11 have to go to a wedding up in New Hampshire, and I am
12 coming back that day on the 8th.

13 But unless you want to agree to do something 14 on the 1st or the 9th, or -- the 1st is a Monday, the 15 9th is a Tuesday, because I'm gone on Friday the 5th,
16 and then Monday the 8th I will be in New Hampshire.

17 MR. EVERS: I'd do --

18 THE COURT: Mr. Evers, are you going to try
19 -- are you the trial counsel?

20 MR. EVERS: I'm trying the case. Yeah.

21 THE COURT: That's what I figured. So I
22 figure -- what's your thoughts?

23 MR. EVERS: I do not think I can do it
24 earlier.

25 THE COURT: Okay.

1 MR. EVERS: My --
2 THE COURT: Well, I'm not pushing it past
3 June 30th for obvious reasons --
4 MR. EVERS: No, I know. I'm just --
5 THE COURT: -- because we all have to -- we
6 all answer to somebody, and I got to explain a 2019
7 case to the powers that be.
8 MR. EVERS: There's a number of cases I have 9 where we're waiting for NJ PURE to drop their bomb, so
10 to speak.
11 THE COURT: Are they still in business, or 12 are they --
13 MR. EVERS: Yeah, but they're supposed to be 14 filing for bankruptcy --
15 MR. PARAGANO: Bankruptcy.
16 MR. EVERS: -- or whatever it is.
17 THE COURT: Is it your client? It's not 18 your --
19 MR. EVERS: Not my client, no, but they are 20 -- they represent --
21 THE COURT: They're codefendants.
22 MR. EVERS: In other cases I mean.
23 THE COURT: No, no, no, no, I understand.
24 MR. EVERS: Right.
25 THE COURT: That's what I'm asking you.

1 MR. EVERS: Oh, yeah.
2 THE COURT: But they're not your client?
3 MR. EVERS: Yeah, I'm not doing that work.
4 THE COURT: It's not your bill. Okay.
5 MR. EVERS: I ain't doing that.
6 THE COURT: At least you're getting paid.
7 Okay.
8 MR. EVERS: Yes. So I'm not -- I have a
9 number of those cases between now and June 15th, so --
10 in Morristown. Enough said.
11 THE COURT: Well, you can only -- well, you
12 can only do one at a time, Bob. So what are you, you
13 know --
14 MR. EVERS: Thank you. So those may clear
15 up, and they may not. I just -- so I can't commit
16 right now to earlier.
17 THE COURT: Well, okay. Fair enough. I
18 figured I'd ask an obvious --
19 MR. EVERS: Yeah.
20 THE COURT: Look, as I said, I'm happy to 21 accommodate everybody that -- as long as it's 22 reasonable and everyone can agree on a date.
23 MR. PARAGANO: June 15th works for us.
24 THE COURT: All right. Then for -- well, for 25 the moment, we'll leave it on for the 15th. Obviously,

1 if Judge Semper has an issues, you can have Judge
2 Semper call me and we'll --

3 MR. PARAGANO: Okay.

4 THE COURT: -- discuss it amongst the 5 judiciary. I have not done federal work in a while,
6 but I'm sure most of their cases date -- post-date
7 2019. So all right. We'll shoot for the 15th then,
8 and unless something changes, and if that's all, I'll 9 give everybody a note or give everybody a call, or 10 we'll do a conference call or something like that.

11 Obviously, if something changes on your end,
12 Mr. Evers --

13 MR. EVERS: Yeah. Absolutely.

14 THE COURT: -- on your end, Mr. Paragano, on 15 your end, Mr. Mell, let us know. As I said, we're 16 always here, we're happy to accommodate everyone
17 reasonably. Otherwise, we'll set it up for the 15th.
18 Fair enough?

19 MR. PARAGANO: Thank you, Your Honor.

20 MR. MELL: Thank you, Your Honor

21 THE COURT: No problem. I'll enter the 22 appropriate order.

23 Thank you very much, everyone. Everyone have 24 a great weekend.

25 MR. EVERS: Thanks, Judge.

1 MS. GUIDA: Thank you.

2 THE COURT: And now I got to move all this
3 stuff back in to get to recycle it all.

Re: My Chapter 7 / B.B. v. Mell, ESX-L-7200-19 — Factual Defense to Any Willful and Malicious Injury Claim

Dear Anthony,

You are quarterbacking this, and I am not going to pretend to know the bankruptcy side better than you do. What I can do is hand you the one thing I have spent years buried in: the actual record of the civil case. I have read every deposition, every order, every text, every expert report. I know where the bodies are buried and, more to the point, I know where Bruce Nagel has buried evidence that does not help him. Everything I reference in this letter is attached behind a tab so you have it in one place.

This letter lays out the factual defense to any claim that I caused B.B. willful and malicious injury. I understand that to keep this debt from being discharged, Nagel has to prove I acted with the actual intent to injure her, or with substantial certainty that she would be injured. Not that I did something wrong. Not that the law says a fifteen-year-old cannot consent. He has to prove I meant to hurt her, or that I was substantially certain I would. I do not believe the record lets him do that, and below I explain why, using the evidence his own side developed.

I am also going to give you my honest read on where Nagel has some footing, because I would rather you hear it from me than get surprised by it. And I am going to tell you what years of dealing with this man have taught me about how he operates, because I think it bears directly on how this plays out.

One point on her age, because it matters to me

Before anything else, my position has always been that the relationship occurred after B.B. turned sixteen. I understand that everyone else — the Appellate Division, the criminal pleas, certainly Nagel — has treated her as fifteen. I want you to know that in the civil case the merits were never tried, so that "fifteen" has never actually been adjudicated as a fact against me; it has only ever been alleged or assumed. The December 2017 text I discuss below is consistent with my position on the timeline. In the long run I do not think the age question changes the dischargeability analysis either way, because the intent standard is the same regardless. But it matters to me, and I want you operating with my actual position rather than Nagel's version of it.

I will add one further point on this. In the federal criminal case, I raised a challenge through post-conviction counsel to the travel count under 18 U.S.C. § 2423(b), arguing that the Information itself did not allege a crime because the New York trip occurred on August 23, 2017 — three weeks after B.B.'s sixteenth birthday — and the age ceiling under § 2243(a)(1), which defines illicit sexual conduct for purposes of § 2423(b), is sixteen, not seventeen or eighteen. That challenge was filed as a supplemental § 2255 motion. The motion was ultimately not pursued to conclusion, and the conviction stands. I am not asking you to litigate that question. But I want you to know that my position on the facts has been consistent throughout, I acted on it in post-conviction proceedings, and the plea I entered reflected the advice of counsel under circumstances I have always disputed rather than a factual admission that the elements of that charge were met.

The relationship was not what the complaint paints, and the record proves it

B.B. and I were involved for roughly two months in the fall of 2017. That is not my characterization. That is hers, in her own words, written to her sister three days after it ended and long before any lawyer was involved (Exhibit A). When her sister asked how long we had been together, she answered, "Like 2 months," and added, "But we didn't even see each other that much." Then, without being asked, she volunteered: "Also I stopped. I said I didn't want to do any of this anymore like a month ago. And that is the truth."

Exhibit A — Text exchange, B.B. to her sister, December 4, 2017 (civil discovery)

Read those messages carefully, because they are the most honest thing in the entire record. She describes a short relationship. She says we barely saw each other. And she says she ended it herself, on her own decision. Those are not the words of someone describing an assault she was powerless to escape. They are the words of a teenager describing the end of a relationship she chose to walk away from.

The contemporaneous therapist notes say the same thing in a different register (Exhibits F–H). In early 2018 she told her counselor she only wanted me "to go away for 3-6 months." She was angry at the FBI because, in her words, they "don't like her because she downplayed what happened." Months and years later she was recorded as "still angry at him and still misses him," and as being upset "to remember all the things they did and the places they went." Whatever else those notes show, they do not show a young woman who experienced this as someone deliberately setting out to destroy her.

I am not saying she was not affected. I am not the one to minimize her feelings and I am not going to try. The point is narrower and it is the only point that matters for the intent question: nothing in this record shows that I acted with the purpose of injuring her, or that I was substantially certain I would. And nothing ever will. The record shows the opposite of a predatory campaign. It shows a relationship that, from her own contemporaneous account, she understood as something she participated in and ended on her own terms.

The "she cannot legally consent" argument is true and beside the point

Nagel's entire posture rests on one move, and you should see it coming because he makes it constantly. He says: she was a minor, she cannot consent as a matter of law, therefore consent is irrelevant and the conduct is by definition an injury. He is right about the law of consent in a statutory sense. He is wrong that it answers the question in front of you.

The legal incapacity of a minor to consent is a rule about civil and criminal liability. It is not a finding about what was in my head, or even about what she felt. Teenagers, including teenagers who cannot legally consent, engage in sexual activity of their own volition all the time. The Supreme Court itself has said so. See Ashcroft v. Free Speech Coalition, 535 U.S. 234, 247 (2002) ("It is, of course, undeniable that some youths engage in sexual activity before the legal age, either on their own inclination or because they are victims of sexual abuse. Both themes—teenage sexual activity and the sexual abuse of children—have inspired countless literary works... William Shakespeare created the most famous pair of teenage lovers, one of whom is just 13 years of age. In the drama, Shakespeare portrays the relationship as something splendid and innocent, but not juvenile.") (Kennedy, J.). That is the uncomfortable factual reality the statutory rule deliberately papers over, and for good reason in the criminal context. But the intent question does not ask whether she could legally consent. It asks whether I intended to injure her, or was substantially certain I would.

This is the keystone, so let me put it as plainly as I can. The willful-and-malicious standard is met only if I acted with the purpose of injuring her or with substantial certainty that injury would result. Both of those are measured from inside my own head, at the time. And here is the thing nobody can get around: nobody believes they are injuring a willing participant. A person who reasonably understands the other person to be a willing participant does not act with substantial certainty of causing injury, because the perceived willingness is exactly what negates the certainty of harm. That is why her apparent willingness is not a moral defense of what I did — it is direct evidence of my state of mind, which is the only thing the statute actually asks about.

And that is why what Nagel did in her deposition is so revealing. In the civil deposition he physically would not let her answer the consent questions (Exhibit E, B.B. Dep. 31:24–32:11; 65:2–3). When my counsel asked "was that consensual," Nagel cut in: "Objection. Hold on... As a matter of law — don't answer that question, Lilly." When the questioning turned to whether she ever said no, he again directed her not to answer, and told the court "She was 15. You can't ask." He called the court and argued at length that the defense could not be permitted to ask. Think about what that means. The single subject he walled off is the one subject that bears directly on what I would have perceived, and what I would have perceived bears directly on whether I was substantially certain I was causing harm. He did not block those questions to spare her discomfort alone. He blocked them because the answers go to the element he has to prove, and he knows which way they cut. He suppressed the very evidence that bears on my intent. That instinct of his — to bury the factual record behind a legal label — is the tell.

The record on my intent is essentially a clean slate — and that helps us

There is something about the shape of this record you should appreciate, because it is unusual and it favors us. On the question of my subjective intent toward B.B., the record contains my criminal pleas and almost nothing else. On the advice of my criminal counsel, because my criminal matter is on appeal, I declined to testify about the relationship itself at my civil depositions (Exhibits B–D). I answered freely about the businesses, the trusts, the family, and my third-party claims, but on the relationship I asserted the protection my criminal lawyers told me to assert.

The practical consequence is this. The only things on the record about my conduct are the criminal pleas, and those establish the acts, not any intent to injure. There is no statement from me of any purpose to harm her, because I gave none. Meanwhile B.B. was deposed extensively about nearly everything — except the one subject, consent, that her own lawyer walled off. So the evidentiary record on my intent is essentially empty on my side and deliberately incomplete on hers, and the person who created both of those gaps is Nagel: nothing from me he could use, and nothing from her on the subject he blocked. To win nondischargeability he has to prove subjective intent to injure, and he has to do it with a record that contains no direct evidence of it and that he himself made sure would stay that way.

The criminal convictions do not carry the intent he needs

I pleaded guilty to one state count of endangering the welfare of a child, N.J.S.A. 2C:24-4(a)(1) (which is being litigated for ineffective-assistance issues right now), and two federal counts: receipt of child pornography, 18 U.S.C. §2252A(a)(2), and travel with intent to engage in illicit sexual conduct, 18 U.S.C. §2423(b). I have served my time for those. But I want you to see clearly what those pleas did and did not establish, because Nagel will wave them around as if they settle everything.

None of those statutes required anyone to prove I intended to injure B.B. Section 2C:24-4(a)(1) turns on engaging in conduct that would impair or debauch the morals of a child — it is about the nature of the conduct, not an intent to cause her psychological harm. Section 2252A(a)(2) turns on knowing receipt of the images. Even §2423(b), the one with "intent" in it, requires intent to engage in sexual conduct, not intent to injure. Every one of those offenses can be committed by someone who never formed any purpose to harm the other person at all. That distinction is exactly the one the bankruptcy courts have drawn: where the underlying statute does not require proof of intent to injure, the conviction cannot supply the willful-and-malicious element by collateral estoppel. See In re Long, 528 B.R. 655 (Bankr. W.D. Va. 2015); Lewis v. Long, 550 B.R. 294 (W.D. Va. 2016); In re BASL (Bankr. E.D. Va. 2018). A conviction that does not require proof of intent to injure cannot manufacture that intent after the fact, and the court is "not permitted to infer such elements solely based on the public policy considerations underlying the antecedent action."

The damages were already measured, and the number is small

Here is a point I think helps you on determining the value of this claim, separate from the intent question. At my federal sentencing I paid $80,000 in restitution. Federal restitution in these cases is specifically designed to cover the full amount of the victim's losses, and that expressly includes the cost of her psychiatric and psychological care, including care reasonably projected into the future. The government consulted with her and her family, prepared the restitution figure, and the court set it at $80,000 to make her whole for the cost of treating the harm she suffered.

That number is a useful anchor. If $80,000 was found sufficient to cover the full cost of her psychological and psychiatric care, including future care, then it becomes very hard to argue that her emotional and mental damages are enormous. The one objective, court-tested figure in this entire record for the cost of her total past and future economic injuries is $80,000. That matters because Nagel has asserted, consistently for seven years, that this case is worth $10 million. Set those two numbers side by side. A federal court, after the government consulted with B.B. and her family, determined after full process that $80,000 covers the full cost of treating her harm for life. Nagel intends to walk into the bankruptcy proceeding and assert a claim roughly one hundred and twenty-five times that figure. When the trustee evaluates a disputed claim, hopefully that spread invites exactly the scrutiny it deserves.

I raised a version of this in state court already. I filed a motion in limine arguing that the federal proceeding had already addressed the compensable harm. The judge denied it without prejudice to renew closer to trial, so it was never decided on the merits, but the argument is teed up and it is a live one. To the extent Nagel hopes to inflate the claim toward his $10 million number, he is mostly hoping for punitive damages, and those are constitutionally capped against the compensatory anchor. Against an established figure of $80,000, even an aggressive punitive multiple does not get him anywhere close to $10 million. I leave the precise mechanics to you, but the trustee should understand that the figure Nagel has been repeating for seven years has almost nothing under it.

The parents' conduct independently caps the claim value further — and a state court judge has already said so

There is a dimension to this case that I do not think Nagel has fully reckoned with, and I want you to have it because it bears directly on how you evaluate his $10 million demand.

Lilly's parents — identified in the civil case as D.D. (Mother) and E.E. (Father); their names are Laura and Tony — are third-party defendants in the state case. I filed a third-party complaint against them in August 2023, asserting contribution and indemnification under the New Jersey Child Sexual Abuse Act, N.J.S.A. 2A:61B-1 et seq., and the Joint Tortfeasors Contribution Law, N.J.S.A. 2A:53A-1 et seq. The brief and responsive statement of facts from that proceeding are attached as Exhibits K and L. What they establish is not a sideshow. It is a direct challenge to the value of Nagel's claim. And crucially, on May 15, 2026, Judge Gardner heard oral argument on cross-motions for summary judgment and issued a bench ruling — attached as Exhibit M — that sends Laura and Tony to trial on the contribution and indemnification claims.

Before Lilly — identified in the civil case as B.B. — had any relationship with me whatsoever, her parents knew I had been involved with their older daughter, Ella, identified in the civil case as C.C. They discovered that relationship in February 2016 and admitted in sworn testimony that they knew it was sexual in nature and involved "inappropriate things." (Exhibit K, Preliminary Statement; Exhibit L, ¶1–7.) A reasonable parent severs every tie. Laura and Tony did the opposite. Laura arranged a private meeting with me at the Essex Hunt Club, consoled me, accepted my apology, and agreed to keep the matter quiet — without contacting the police or seeking any legal protection whatsoever. (Exhibit L, ¶8–10.)

From that moment forward, rather than building a wall between me and their younger daughter, they spent the next eighteen months actively facilitating access. In April 2016, Lilly and her younger sister discovered explicit messages and photographs on Ella's phone and immediately brought them to Laura. Laura refused to look at the evidence and returned the phone to Ella. (Exhibit L, ¶12–14.) In May 2016, Lilly herself approached Laura at a pre-prom party and explicitly warned her that I was "following [her] around" and acting "weird." Laura and Tony dismissed her concern and continued socializing with me at that same event. (Exhibit L, ¶15–16.) That warning — from their own daughter, in real time — was ignored.

Over the following sixteen months the record documents what their acquiescence looked like in financial terms. Laura and Tony accepted private jet flights for their entire family to Maine for a college move-in and again for parents' weekend, and a helicopter extraction from New York City piloted by me after a shopping trip I paid for. (Exhibit L, ¶19(a)–(d); Tr. 12:1–6, May 15, 2026.) They accepted two brokerage accounts I funded with $25,000 each — one for Laura, one for Ella. (Exhibit L, ¶22.) They accepted my sponsorship of their admission to the Essex Hunt Club. (Exhibit L, ¶23.) They accepted tickets to sold-out Garth Brooks and Zac Brown Band concerts. (Exhibit L, ¶24.) Laura also served as the listing agent for my condominium and collected a commission split. (Exhibit L, ¶25.) Critically, with full knowledge of what they themselves characterized as an inappropriate situation with Ella, they permitted me to fund and facilitate Lilly's private flying lessons at the Somerset Airport, granting me unsupervised access to their younger daughter. (Exhibit L, ¶26; Tr. 13:3–6, May 15, 2026.) They even allowed Lilly and her younger sister to sit alone with me in the cockpit of a private aircraft. (Exhibit L, ¶19(e).) The record supports a conservative estimate of over $200,000 in cash and in-kind benefits Laura and Tony extracted from me during the period when they were simultaneously facilitating my access to their daughters.

Then, on July 27, 2017 — in close proximity to when Lilly says the sexual relationship with me began — Laura received a $25,000 direct wire into her personal Chase account, an account opened just four weeks before the deposit arrived. (Exhibit L, ¶21; Tr. 12:7–9, May 15, 2026.) I noted to the court that the wire was made on the phone with Laura and Ella on speaker, with Laura providing her account number. (Tr. 30:19–25, May 15, 2026.) The financial record also shows that after Patrick Whalen filed a motion to compel production of the Chase statements, Laura transferred $25,000 back into that account in December 2022, and then immediately paid $25,000 to her own attorney in May 2023. (Exhibit K, Statement of Facts, Section V; Tr. 12:8–21, May 15, 2026.)

What makes this independently significant to Lilly's claimed emotional harm is what Laura did when Lilly began seeing a therapist, Dr. Robinson, in August 2017. Rather than supporting her daughter's treatment, Laura interrogated Lilly about what she had disclosed. Her concern was not Lilly's wellbeing; it was financial exposure. She sent Lilly text messages asking pointedly whether she had told the doctor "who was paying" for the flying lessons. (Exhibit L, ¶28.) When Lilly confirmed she had, Laura expressed surprise that the doctor "thought it was fine." (Exhibit L, ¶28.) Lilly's response to her mother was: "I'm so confused." (Exhibit L, ¶29.) That is a mother who, rather than helping her daughter process what she was experiencing, was managing her own legal exposure — and in doing so generating independent emotional harm to a child who was already confused and vulnerable.

The cover-up that followed is documented in equal detail. In October 2017, a fellow parent contacted Laura directly to report that Lilly's friends had discovered illicit text messages linking her to me. Laura did nothing. (Exhibit L, ¶31–33.) When the school finally notified the parents on December 4, 2017, they did not go to law enforcement — they retained counsel and opened a settlement channel, demanding $10 million from me before they would cooperate with investigators. (Exhibit L, ¶47–49.) Text messages from that period explicitly state that pursuing criminal charges would force me to "respond very quickly and more favorably" to their financial demands. (Exhibit L, ¶50.) Laura and Tony delayed Lilly's forensic interview with law enforcement for seventeen days while that negotiation played out. (Exhibit L, ¶43.) During that window, Laura instructed Lilly via text to "delete Snapchat" — destroying the digital record of the relationship — and told her "whatever you do, don't discuss any details of your relationship with anyone" and to "not admit" anything. (Exhibit L, ¶50–54.)

The Mother's November 19, 2017 text to Lilly is perhaps the most revealing document in the entire record. Laura wrote: "I also think he's ready to be done with us. Not get rid of B.B., but done with us, a family unit." (Tr. 13:17–19, May 15, 2026.) I pointed out to the court that the text did not come from a mother who was deceived — it came from a mother who understood exactly what was at stake, and it was not her daughter's safety. (Tr. 13:21–23, May 15, 2026.)

Judge Gardner denied both cross-motions for summary judgment on May 15, 2026, and sent the contribution and indemnification claims to trial. In doing so, he made three findings directly relevant to what you will face in the bankruptcy proceeding. First, on the CSAA acquiescence question: "There's a substantial issue of operative fact here as to whether the parents in fact acquiesced here. And as I said, it may not be direct evidence, but there certainly is circumstantial evidence to at least make an argument of the reasonable inferences against the movant that, in fact, they may have acquiesced in this case." (Tr. 33:20–25, 34:1–2.) Second, on parental immunity: "I don't think that — certainly, the argument here would be that what happened here certainly does not fall within parental authority — or provision of customary child care." (Tr. 34:11–14.) Third, on willful and wanton conduct: "Whether in fact this rises to the level of willful or wanton I think is a jury question." (Tr. 34:22–23.) A state court judge with seven years of familiarity with this record has now determined that a jury could reasonably find Laura and Tony acquiesced in the conduct, that their behavior falls outside the protection of parental immunity, and that the question of willful and wanton disregard is a jury issue. That is the posture of the third-party claim going into any proceeding that touches the value of Nagel's demand.

The legal consequence, which I leave entirely to your judgment to deploy or hold, is this: under New Jersey's Joint Tortfeasors Contribution Law, Laura and Tony are jointly and severally liable for the indivisible harm Lilly allegedly suffered to the extent their conduct contributed to it. My position — supported by the record and now validated by a state court ruling — is that they are at minimum fifty percent contributorily liable, and arguably more. They possessed actual knowledge of my history with Ella for approximately five hundred days before Lilly's relationship with me began. (Exhibit L, ¶4, 20.) During that entire window they had the absolute power to end it before it started. Instead they took the money, facilitated the access, delayed the investigation, destroyed the evidence, and then demanded $10 million. The confusion, the gaslighting in therapy, the instructions to delete evidence, the 17-day delay while they negotiated a payout: none of that is attributable to me. Either way, the number that actually lands on me is a fraction of what Nagel has been advertising for seven years. The gap between his $10 million and the federal restitution figure of $80,000 becomes even more stark when you factor in that Laura and Tony absorb a substantial share of whatever sits in between.

They just violated the bankruptcy stay — and they did it with full knowledge

I need to put something in front of you that happened just days ago, because it tells you everything about how far out of their depth Nagel Rice is in this forum. On Thursday, June 18, 2026, Michael Paragano of Nagel Rice emailed me directly (Exhibit I):

Exhibit I — Email, M. Paragano (Nagel Rice) to S. Bradley Mell, June 18, 2026, 4:58 p.m.

He advised me that "our prejudgment attachment includes any and all vehicles in your possession, including, but not limited to the 1995 Ferrari that you testified to owning during your deposition," and instructed me that "you should not undertake any efforts to remove the vehicle from the state." He sent this to me directly. I am obviously a represented debtor in an active Chapter 7. He was plainly asserting continued control over property of the estate and directing my conduct over it.

From everything I understand, the moment I filed my petition the automatic stay went into effect, and it bars exactly this kind of thing — any act to exercise control over estate property or to enforce a pre-petition attachment, and any direct collection contact with me. I understand a willful violation of that stay exposes the violator to actual damages, including the attorney's fees I incur in dealing with it, and potentially to punitive damages and the court's contempt power. I will defer to you completely on whether and how to pursue a remedy. But I would genuinely like to pursue something, if for no other reason than to make sure the trustee and the bankruptcy court are fully aware of this, because it speaks directly to their credibility in front of the very people who will weigh their inflated claim.

And here is the part that removes any possibility this was an innocent mistake. Your partner Sari Placona spoke directly with Paragano on June 15. He confirmed to her that even Judge Gardner acknowledged my bankruptcy filing on the record. So as of June 15, Paragano had actual, admitted knowledge of the bankruptcy. Three days later, on June 18, he sent me this email anyway. He did not stumble into this unaware. He knew about the filing, admitted he knew, and then violated the stay regardless. As I understand it, willfulness in this context just means they knew of the stay and intended the act, and they have essentially conceded both.

There is an irony in it too. The attachment he is trying to enforce is a prejudgment attachment from the state case — the same case that was dismissed by the Zunic order, in which, as you noted to me, no order was declared to survive the dismissal. So he violated a federal bankruptcy stay in order to enforce a prejudgment attachment from a dismissed case. The conduct is wrong twice: wrong to contact me at all given the stay and my representation, and questionable on whether that attachment even still binds anything.

I want to be blunt about why this gets under my skin, beyond the legal violation. For years, any time I committed the smallest infraction despite being pro se with no civil court experience, Nagel ran to Judge Gardner and asked for sanctions. They froze one hundred percent of my assets under the attachment, including my ERISA-protected retirement funds that should never have been touchable in the first place. When I asked the court to release enough of my own money to live on, they opposed it and got me sanctioned $8,000 for asking. Because of that freeze I have not even been able to move my ERISA-protected funds into my 401(k) where they could grow — and given the bull market we have had, that is potentially a great deal of lost opportunity. That is the standard they held me to. And now, with admitted knowledge of a federal bankruptcy stay, they fire off an email asserting control over my car and ordering me not to move it — an asset which I understand is now in the legal custody of the trustee anyway. The firm that ran to the judge over every minor thing I did just committed one of the most basic violations there is. This is something a second-year law student knows not to do. It is, frankly, a window into how unprepared they are for the forum they are now in.

The parents' pseudonymity may not carry into federal court — and I am asking you to assess and raise it

There is a procedural issue I want to flag and ask you to assess, because I believe Nagel will simply assume it resolves itself and act accordingly.

In the state case, Laura and Tony have litigated from the beginning under the pseudonyms D.D. and E.E. The basis for that anonymity has been that identifying them would effectively identify Lilly, who is herself protected. That argument was accepted in state court, and they have used it throughout the litigation as a shield — hiding their own conduct and identity behind their daughter's privacy interest.

My understanding from civil and criminal federal practice is that federal court applies a meaningfully stricter standard. In the Third Circuit, the default rule is that parties proceed under their real names. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 10(a). Departure from that default requires the court's affirmative authorization, and the controlling standard in civil and criminal federal proceedings is set out in Doe v. Megless, 654 F.3d 404 (3d Cir. 2011). Under Megless, a party seeking to proceed anonymously must demonstrate that the interest in privacy outweighs the public's presumptive right to know who is litigating in federal court. Embarrassment, social stigma, and reputational harm — even serious reputational harm — are generally insufficient. The parents' derivative argument — that identifying them identifies Lilly — does not automatically satisfy that standard, particularly where Lilly herself can remain protected under a separate pseudonym, which I expect any federal court to order as a matter of course. What I do not know, and what I am asking you to assess, is whether the bankruptcy court applies the same or an equivalent standard in adversary proceedings, or whether a separate framework governs anonymity in that context.

My expectation is that Nagel will not think about this carefully. His pattern, which the Paragano email illustrates perfectly, is to assume that what worked in state court controls everywhere else. He will almost certainly file whatever he files in In re Mell, CA-26-16834, simply using D.D. and E.E. without seeking leave of the bankruptcy court, on the assumption that the state court's practice carries over automatically. If the federal standard applies in any form in the bankruptcy court, that assumption is almost certainly wrong. Leave would be required, and the standard for obtaining it is higher than what the state court applied.

I am strongly asking you to raise this at the appropriate time if you conclude the federal standard applies here. Forcing Laura and Tony to litigate under their real names in a federal proceeding has real consequences for how this plays out. It removes the shield of anonymity from people whose conduct — as the attached exhibits document, and as a state court judge has now confirmed warrants a jury — was commercially calculated and deliberately concealed. It puts their names on a public federal docket alongside the facts in my third-party complaint. And it removes one of the tactical advantages Nagel has relied on throughout this litigation: the ability to present his clients as faceless, sympathetic guardians rather than as the architects of the arrangement the record actually describes. I leave the timing and the precise vehicle entirely to your judgment. But I wanted to flag it now, because if Nagel files without seeking leave, the moment to raise it will come early.

Where Nagel actually has some footing — so you are not surprised

I am not going to pretend our position is airtight. Here is where I think he has his best shots, and what I think the answer is.

His strongest single point is the assault and battery count. The summary judgment was granted on it, and the complaint pleaded that my acts were "intentional and designed to cause harmful and offensive contact." He could argue that battery is an intentional tort and that intent to cause harmful contact is the same as intent to injure. There are two things you should know before you hear that argument from him.

First, the summary judgment on this count was a discovery sanction. Judge Gardner's ruling was procedural, based on my assertion of Fifth Amendment rights during civil discovery while my criminal appeal was pending. It made no factual finding whatsoever about what I intended. There was no testimony taken, no merits analysis, and no adjudication that I acted with intent to harm. The Appellate Division's own opinion confirmed that the summary judgment was entered under those procedural circumstances. That distinction matters enormously in front of a bankruptcy court, which must find willful and malicious injury based on actual evidence of subjective intent — not on a sanction order that deliberately bypassed the merits entirely.

Second, both civil assault and battery require elements that Nagel cannot establish on this record. Battery requires harmful or offensive contact — contact that is unwanted. Assault requires that the plaintiff be placed in apprehension of imminent harmful or offensive contact. A person who is a willing participant is not in fear. A person who is anticipating and welcoming contact is not in apprehension of it. Lilly's own contemporaneous account — in Exhibit A — describes a two-month relationship she understood herself to be participating in and that she chose to end on her own terms. Whatever the statutory rule says about legal capacity to consent, her apparent willingness bears directly on whether the essential elements of civil assault and battery — unwanted contact and reasonable apprehension — can actually be proven on the merits. Those elements have never been tested, because the summary judgment that purports to establish them never reached the merits. That is Nagel's problem, not mine.

His second point is the federal travel plea, because of the word "intent." In a room with a judge, "he traveled across state lines to have sex with a fifteen-year-old" has emotional force whatever the technical law says. The answer is the one above — intent to engage in conduct is not intent to injure — but I know that can feel like a fine distinction in the moment. It helps that criminal mens rea in these statutes attaches to the act, not to any later injury; the crime is provable regardless of whether injury was actually sustained, which is exactly why the conviction proves the act and not the intent to harm.

His third point is the expert, Dr. Hughes (referenced; full report available on request). Her report is serious and sympathetic and documents years of real suffering — although it is notably one-sided and never untangles how much of that suffering traces to conduct other than mine, including a separate assault Lilly has testified she suffered and the role her own parents played in this. The thing I would point out is that nowhere in it does she say I intended to cause that harm. She describes harm that resulted from the conduct. She uses the word grooming, but that describes building trust and access, not a purpose to cause injury. She can arguably establish the harm is real. She cannot say what was in my mind, and she does not try to. Still, in front of a judge who is also a human being, the weight of that report is the hardest thing we face, and I want to be honest with you that it is.

My read on Nagel, for whatever it is worth to you

I have watched this man litigate against me for years, and I want to give you my honest read, because it matters to how this unfolds. Bruce Nagel is a narcissist. He runs on theatrical optics and he wins by inflaming the passions and prejudices of whoever is making the decision. In state court, with a sympathetic victim and a sex-offender defendant, that approach worked, because the forum rewarded it. He has come to believe he does not need help and cannot be outmaneuvered.

That hubris shows up in how he built the civil case, and it is genuinely instructive. Rather than pursue me cleanly and then deal with collection, he sued every entity in sight, named legally formed trusts (and even my children) as if they were my piggy bank, misunderstood how corporate ownership and shareholder liability work, and even tried to attach corporate assets as though they were my personal property. He sued the entities for negligence and collected what were plainly nuisance settlements. A more disciplined lawyer would have gone after me directly and worried about piercing veils later, if at all. He did not, because the sprawling approach generated activity, billing, and the appearance of aggression. It was theater.

Why this matters for you: a case like mine, in bankruptcy, is precisely where his weaknesses become dangerous to him and where a seasoned bankruptcy specialist would be worth every penny. The points where we are exposed — the battery count, the expert, the emotional weight — are exactly the points a specialist would press hardest and sequence carefully. But reading the tea leaves from how he has run this case for years, my honest expectation is that Nagel will believe he can handle the bankruptcy side himself, the way he believed he could handle everything else. The Paragano email is the first piece of hard evidence that this is exactly what is happening. A firm with competent bankruptcy counsel does not send a represented debtor a direct email enforcing a dismissed-case attachment three days after admitting it knew about the bankruptcy filing. I think he will overvalue his own case, lean on the moral optics that carried him in state court, and underestimate how different this forum is. That is not a prediction I would bet the firm on, but it is my genuine read, and the stay violation suggests it is already coming true.

Bottom line

I am not trying to relitigate what I did. I am trying to give you the truest possible picture of what the record actually shows, so that whatever path you choose, you are choosing it with full command of the facts I have spent years living inside. The intent-to-injure standard is a high one. The contemporaneous record does not support it. The consent evidence Nagel buried goes straight to whether I could have been substantially certain of causing injury, and he buried it for a reason. The record on my own intent is essentially a clean slate. The damages were already measured at a modest number. Laura and Tony's conduct independently accounts for a substantial share of whatever damages exist — and a state court judge has now confirmed that question goes to a jury. And the man on the other side has a long track record of overplaying his hand.

Tell me what you need from me and I will get it to you. Everything I reference is attached and tabbed so you do not have to dig through thousands of pages. Whatever you decide to do with it, the facts are on our side here, and I wanted you to have them in one place and in plain terms.

With appreciation and respect,

Brad

Privileged and confidential attorney-client communication. The civil-case materials referenced and attached were produced under a confidentiality and sealing order in ESX-L-7200-19. The effect of the June 12, 2026 dismissal order on that seal is unsettled; if any of this is ever placed before the bankruptcy court, it should be submitted under seal.

EXHIBIT INDEX

Exhibit A. Text Exchange — B.B. to Sister, December 4, 2017

B.B.'s own contemporaneous account, sent before any lawyer was involved, describing the relationship as roughly two months, noting they "didn't even see each other that much," and stating she ended it herself a month earlier ("I stopped... and that is the truth").

Exhibit B. Deposition of S. Bradley Mell — September 22, 2021

Debtor's civil deposition. Establishes that, on advice of criminal counsel pending appeal, the debtor declined to testify about the relationship, leaving no on-record statement of intent toward B.B.

Exhibit C. Deposition of S. Bradley Mell — July 27, 2023

Debtor's continued civil deposition, focused largely on the business entities and trusts; debtor again declined to answer questions concerning the plaintiff.

Exhibit D. Deposition of S. Bradley Mell — August 22, 2025

Debtor's further civil deposition. Confirms the debtor's repeated, counsel-advised refusal to testify about the sexual relationship with B.B. given the pending criminal appeal, and documents the Cannon family's continued voluntary association with the debtor.

Exhibit E. Deposition of B.B. — September 24, 2021

Plaintiff's deposition. Contains the colloquy in which plaintiff's counsel (Nagel) objected and directed the witness not to answer any question concerning consent (Tr. 31:24–32:11; 65:2–3), suppressing the testimony most relevant to the debtor's perception and intent.

Exhibit F. Medical/Counseling Records — Dr. Bradley Robinson

Contemporaneous treatment records reflecting, among other things, B.B.'s statements that she wanted the matter resolved with limited consequence and that she "downplayed what happened."

Exhibit G. Medical Records — Dr. Cowen/Hune (March 2020)

Additional treatment records bearing on the nature, sources, and course of B.B.'s reported distress.

Exhibit H. Medical Records — Somerset/Robinson

Further treatment records relevant to the measurement and attribution of B.B.'s claimed psychological injuries.

Exhibit I. Email — M. Paragano (Nagel Rice) to S. Bradley Mell, June 18, 2026

Direct communication to the represented debtor asserting a prejudgment attachment over the debtor's vehicle and directing his conduct over estate property — sent three days after Nagel Rice admitted knowledge of the bankruptcy filing.

Exhibit J. Deposition of Laura Cannon

Mother's deposition, relevant to the open and integrated nature of the families' relationship and the broader factual context bearing on the debtor's state of mind.

Exhibit K. Third-Party Plaintiff's Brief in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment (ESX-L-7200-19)

Brad's pro se summary judgment brief against Laura and Tony (D.D. and E.E.), documenting the 500-day facilitation window, over $200,000 in benefits extracted, the December 2017 cover-up, and the legal basis for contribution and indemnification under the CSAA and JTCL.

Exhibit L. Responsive Statement of Material Facts — Third-Party Proceeding (ESX-L-7200-19)

Supporting statement of material facts with record citations, establishing Laura and Tony's chronological knowledge, financial benefit, and conduct bearing on comparative fault and claim valuation.

Exhibit M. Transcript of Oral Argument and Bench Decision, B.B. v. Mell, ESX-L-7200-19 (Hon. Robert H. Gardner, J.S.C., May 15, 2026)

Court transcript reflecting Judge Gardner's denial of both cross-motions for summary judgment, his finding that Laura and Tony's conduct does not fall within the provision of customary child care protected by parental immunity, and his ruling that the question of willful and wanton conduct — and CSAA acquiescence — are jury questions. Laura and Tony proceed to trial on the contribution and indemnification claims.
